High Desert Chapter

People like you, helping people like you!

The American Red Cross is able to help those affected by disasters small and large because of the generosity of the American people. The Red Cross is not a government agency; it relies on voluntary donations of time, money and blood to do its work. The High Desert Chapter responds to approximately 100 incidents annually, providing shelter, food, comfort and financial assistance. One way to help us help High Desert residents 24 hours-a-day, 365 days-a-year is through a financial donation.
